Decision on Marches Project

Reading the "Hereford Times" you may have gained the impression that the Leominster Marches Project was definitely rolling forward for another two years. However, the matter appears to have become a political football, with some District Councillors apparently considering following a party line dictated from Worcester. Decision day is the 19th March when the full District Council meets.

Currently the Project is run as a three-way partnership, between County & District Authorities and the Community Projects Foundation (A Home Office Quango). This has led some Councillors to incorrectly view the Project as a voluntary organisation funded on grant, in reality it was formed because the County & District Authorities wanted it to happen. With the County Council having opted out, the Project firmly becomes the "baby" of Leominster District Council, with the support of the Community Projects Foundation.

Some Councillors may not have realised the reality of their responsibility, resolutions are being passed which still leave the funding of the Project in some doubt. Perhaps this is partly caused by the split loyalties of some politicians, but whatever the reason, a system that can delay until 19th March whether people will be employed on 1st April needs investigating. Perhaps the Project could investigate whether speeding up decision making by Local Authorities would help employment!

THURSDAY 13TH MARCH, 1986.

SERVICE DEVELOPMENTS-LEOMINSTER AREA

From 27th January 1986 the Cross Gates Motors service between Llandrindod Wells and Hereford will be available for local journeys within Herefordshire. The service runs on the first Wednesday in the month, and on the Saturday falling on or between the 18th and 24th of each month. It will call at Kinton (9.45 am), Eardisley (9.55 am), Hay Turning, Staunton-on-Wye and Kings Acre, returning from Hereford at 4.00 pm.

From 18th February the Dilwyn to Leominster service run by Lugg Valley Motors will operate in School holidays as well as in term time. The bus leaves Dilwyn at 8.25 am, returning from Leominster at 3.35 pm.

'SIGNAL' SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscriptions are due for renewal in April. The price will remain at £1.20. Please help your deliverer by paying promptly. Please note that, from April, you can only have 'Signal' delivered if you pay the years subscription. 'Signal' will be available price 12p for each individual copy from:

ARTHRITIS AND RHEUMATISM

COUNCIL FOR RESEARCH

1986 is a very important year for the Leominster and District branch of The Arthritis and Rheumatism Council for Research. It is the A.R.C.'s 50th anniversary and the branch is playing an active part in it.

Because it is hoped that the anniversary will encourage more people to support A.R.C., the anniversary will be used to give yet more impetus to research into arthritis and improvement of treatment.

Haulwen Symonds, secretary of the Leominster and District branch of the council, would like to hear from any organisations, or individuals, who would like more information about A.R.C., its special anniversary, or those diseases which afflict eight million people in this country, and one in a thousand children. American Odyssey

by

GARETH EVANS

ALTHOUGH most of my life has been spent working abroad I have never, until last November, had the chance of visiting the United States. There is a well-held belief that if you dream too much of a place, you give it an aura it can never live up to and, for this reason, it is better to keep it in your dreams and never go there. Shiela and I are, however, glad that we dismissed this thought from our minds because, although there were many aspects of American life to which we would have preferred the British version, we would like to say at once that our American odyssey fully lived up to expectations.

There is also another well-founded belief - some would even describe it as a 'conviction' - that there is nothing more boring than other people's travel experiences. Unless, of course, it's their photographs of the same! So, for this reason, I have chosen just four highlights which will remain with me always. Be warned because what follows is a purely personal reaction.

1. The Frick Art Collection (New York)

This is quite the most magnificent gathering of world famous paintings I have ever seen. It's the way they are presented that makes all the difference. Frick, a multimillionaire, left his Park Avenue mansion to the nation and this means you can walk on gorgeous carpets and, against exquisite wall decorations and furniture, view these masterpieces against a domestic, albeit palatial, background. Few galleries can provide this calibre of presentation so for this reason alone I'll never be able to get the Frick out of my mind.

2. The New York Skyline

All of us, at some time, must have seen photographs of this world famous scene so it is all the more remarkable that reality fully lived up to the images of our imagination. It could have been a disappointment but it wasn't - it was indeed a stunning sight. Against this giant backdrop even the Statue of Liberty looked small but judgement must here be tempered by the fact that the whole edifice was shrouded in scaffolding. The Statue, in all its renovated glory, will be revealed again at the end of the year.

3. The Lincoln and Vietnam Memorials

I shall never forget them. Lincoln has always been one of my heroes and the creative majesty of his huge sculpture filled me with awe. I stood transfixed, and not entirely dry-eyes, as I read, on the walls behind the statue, the wonderful phrasing of his Gettysburg Oration and Second Inaugural.

The work 'unique' is one that must be used carefully but I think it quite justified in describing the Vietnam memorial. In the first place, from a distance of 50 yards, you cannot see it at all. This is because it is entirely below the surface of the surrounding park and consists only of black marble panels - inscribed with 60,000 names - alongside a sloping V-shaped path. In front of these panels people place their mementoes of remembrance. I cannot improve upon this bald description and mere words will never convey its emotional impact. Let's leave it like that.

4. The endless lights of Los Angeles from the air

These were quite astounding. When, for instance, you fly into London's Heathrow at night the city lights, especially their differing colours, make an entrancing sight but, as you look north and south, you see that they come to a darkened end. Not so Los Angeles. Here, their brilliance from 2-3000 feet is such that they illuminate the aircraft cabin itself and themselves stretch away endlessly in seemingly eternal squares of lights to and beyond the far horizons. It would seem to be a city without frontiers. Not one I cared for much in daylight, its night lights I'll never forget.

Already I've gone on for too long and I've only covered four highlights. So that enough for now and I'll next try to encourage Shiela to tell her tale of our American odyssey. She so often sees things differently from me.

NORTON CANON LADIES' SOCIAL CLUB

The February meeting had to be cancelled because of the freezing weather. Perhaps 'postponed' would be a better word as it is hoped that the Tupperware demonstration and sale evening will now be held on 10th March as usual at 8 p.m. in the Village Hall at Norton Canon.

Raffle and refreshments as usual. Remember, you don't have to be a 'member' to come to these evenings. All ladies are most welcome.

AN APPEAL

On behalf of the R.N.I.B. Local Fund for the Blind, I am urgently in need of new helpers to raise funds. I desperately need kind and good people who would be willing to help with house to house collections in their own villages or towns and collections on their local Flag Days. People who might hold a social event such as a coffee evening, garden party, whist drive, jumble sale, wine and cheese evening etc. Truly special people who would be kind enough to add their unique talents to make their many blind friends much happier.

An 18th Century Vignette

by

RICHARD PANTALL

It is recorded that in the 1700's the principal fish taken in the Wye was the salmon. Young fish in their first year were known in Herefordshire as 'Last-Springs,' in other parts they were called 'Salmon-Fry.' In their first year back from the sea as summer fish they were called 'Botchers,' weighing from three to twelve pounds. In the third year they became salmon, often weighing from forty to fifty pounds.

The degree of perfection in which they were caught varied not only with the season but also to the time elapsed since leaving the sea. John Duncomb writes 'the taste of salmon depends much on the time which has intervened between catching and the dressing: when they are brought to the table in high season, and within a few hours of their capture, the fat which lies in strata between the flakes becomes, by boiling, a kind of white film or curd, of a glutinous consistence; and the whole fish has a peculiar crimpness, which is much admired. But if a longer period has elapsed, this fat dissolves, and the firmness is lost.'

He says they were so plentiful that it was a common clause in the indentures of children in Hereford, that they should not be compelled to live on salmon more frequently than two days in a week. Selling at one penny per pound in Hereford in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, they had reached a price of from sixpence of half a crown per pound, according to quality, by 1804.

RECIPE

LIVER IN WHITE WINE

- 1/2 lb lambs liver
- 1 tbs cooking oil
- 1 tbs margarine
- 1 dessert spoon flour
- 1 dessert spoon tomato puree (or sauce)
- 1 medium onion
- 4 oz mushrooms
- 1/4 - 1/2 pt white wine (dry)
- Salt & pepper
- 2 rashers of bacon (optional)

Slice the liver and fry gently for 2-3 minutes in the oil & margarine. Remove to a fire-proof casserole. Gently fry the sliced onion and mushrooms till soft. Sprinkle with flour and gradually add wine, puree and seasoning. Stir well & pour over liver. Cover and put in oven at 180 degrees for about 3/4 hour. Place bacon rashers on top of liver etc and grill until just crisp. Serves 2. (If your casserole will not stand being under the grill, fry the bacon separately and serve as above.)

ROOKS

by

Joan Close

MBC

LAST autumn, there seemed to be a great number of rooks - many more than usual, I thought. There is always some contention as to whether they do good or not - certainly they eat a great number of grubs and wireworm, but possibly a little corn as well. I like to see them. When I was a child, we had a pet rook, a young bird. He fell from the nest, and we brought him into the house and reared him. When he could fly, 'Rooky', as we called him, stayed around - in fact he made rather a nuisance of himself! If the window was open when we were having a meal, he would fly in, and help himself to anything he fancied. I remember one day, he speared a piece of cheese with his beak, and made off with it. And having tea in the garden was quite a hazard when he was about! However, one day he went too far, as he tried to take some food out of our spaniel's bowl, and the dog sprang at him and broke his leg. My father set it, and kept him in a box in his room, and in a short time 'Rooky' was his old self again.

Another habit of his was to take small objects - thimbles, or anything bright - and hide them (for some reason he had a passion for toothbrushes!) From time to time, we would raid his cache, which was usually in a chestnut tree near the house, and find quite a collection of missing things.

He was very fond of my father and would often fly down from quite a height and perch on his shoulder. My sister has a photo of them both. Gradually, he went off for longer periods and eventually he disappeared altogether. We hoped he had gone back to the rookery, but we never knew what happened to him. He was a great character.

WEOBLEY & DISTRICT LOCAL HISTORY SOCIETY

At the January meeting of the Society, Mr. J. Tonkin, a well-known expert on mediaeval buildings, gave a generously illustrated lecture on timber-frame barns, a subject close to the hearts of many of his audience.

Ranging in time from the Middle Ages to the more recent - and in different countries - and in methods from the cruck barn to the magnificent tithe barns of the Church, Mr. Tonkin showed a quite outstanding depth of knowledge. A particular reference to the Black Hall barn at Kings Pyon provoked considerable interest.

Despite several talks previously by Mr. Tonkin on timber-framed buildings, country houses and other architectural subjects it is worthy of note that all the slides shown were quite new to at least one fascinated viewer!

The next meeting will be on 26th February when Mr. H. Paske will talk on the History of Hop Growing.

ROYAL BRITISH LEGION-EARDISLEY & DISTRICT

A successful branch meeting was held at the Branch Headquarters at the New Inn, Eardisley, on Wednesday, 5th February. It was agreed at this meeting that all future meetings would be held at the New Inn with the exception of a meeting to be held at the New Inn, Staunton-on-Wye, by kind permission of the landlord. The date of this meeting will be announced later and it is hoped that as many as possible of the members of the late Staunton-on-Wye Branch will attend and renew their membership of the Royal British Legion, which is for all ex-service personnel.

The Branch Secretary, Godfrey Davies, represented the branch at the West Midlands Area Conference at Malvern on Saturday, 22nd February, and will also represent the branch at the National Conference in Blackpool on 24th, 25th and 26th May.

On Friday, 28th February the first of a series of three whist drives for the Peter Mokler Cup and trophies took place at the Curzon Herrick Hall in Eardisley. There was a cup for the highest aggregate score for seniors and juniors and the remaining two whist drives will be held on 7th and 14th March. Admission is 50p inclusive of refreshments, and the proceeds are for the Benevolent Fund of the Eardisley Branch.

The next Branch Meeting will be on 8th March at 8 p.m.

The Eardisley and District Poppy Day Appeal target of £2000 for the year 1985-6 which ends on 31st May will be reached. The next bingo sessions in aid of the appeal will be held in the Curzon Herrick Hall on Saturdays, 8th March, 5th April and 3rd May.

BUSINESS COURSES

course for small businesses.

Thinking of starting a business in '86? Why not come to a small business start up course, run by small business advisers in Kington during March? The time and content of the course will be arranged to suit applicants and will focus on:- your market, developing your business plan, finance, costing and cash flow, legal requirements and personnel. After the first 45 hours in sessions with small groups of twelve there will be 20 hours free individual business advice.

The courses are being organised by John Barton of Hereford Technical College's small business unit and the Leominster Marches Project.

On March 18th at 7 p.m. in the Oxford Arms, Kington, there will be a one-off workshop on developing business needs, and starting on March 24th at 7 p.m. in the same venue there will be a six-week book-keeping and accounting

Details of bookings can be obtained from Cathy Moon at the Marches Project, phone Kington 231103.

A BIT OF BINDER STRING

This poem was broadcast in a 'Pick of the Week' programme on BBC Radio 4.

D'ye mind Bill Bates that used to work
For Drake at Badger's End?
There weren't a tool about the spot
That fellow couldn't mend.
From a hay fork to a harvester
Or any mortal thing
Old Bill would always fix it
With a bit of binder string.

That day the Friesian bull got out
And rove and tore around,
Nobody durst go near him
As he roared and hooked the ground,
Till boss shouts 'Bill, the bull's got
And gone and broke his ring'.
So Bill lassoed the bugger
With a bit of binder string.

Bill courted Mabel seven years
And then said 'Let's get wed.'
I've got a table and some chairs
And granny's feather bed.
There's half a ton of tatties
In yon field that I can bring,
And I've made some handsome doormats
Out of thick there binder string.'

And Mabel said 'We'd best get wed
Afore they cut the hay.'
So they had a slap-up wedding
On the seventeenth of May.
But when he got to church Bill found
That he'd forgot the ring,
So he had to marry Mabel
With a loop of binder string.

Next year a little daughter
Came to bless the happy pair
With bright blue eyes like saucers
And a tuft of ginger hair.
Now Bill said to the parson
At the baby's christening,
'See! Her hair be just the colour
Of a bit of binder string.'

At last time came when poor Bill died
And came to heaven's door.
He heard the angels singing there
And he was worried sore.
He said to good St. Peter
'I never learnt to sing -
I was always kept too busy
Mending things with binder string.'

'Don't worry,' good St. Peter said,
'The good Lord understands.
He used to be a carpenter
And likes folks to use their hands.
We've plenty people here who sing,
So have you brought some binder string?'

Thus Bill do bide in heaven now,
And he's very happy there.
He's got a little workshop
Right behind St. Peter's chair.
So while the angels play their harps
And all the saints do sing
Bill mends the little cherubs' toys
With bits of binder string.

The Tourist's Prayer

Heavenly Father, look down on us, your humble obedient tourist servants, who are doomed to travel this earth taking photographs, writing post-cards, buying souvenirs and walking around in drip-dry underwear.

We beseech you, O Lord, to see that our plane is not hi-jacked, our baggage not lost and our overweight luggage and illegal imports are unnoticed

Lead us to good inexpensive restaurants where the wine is included in the price of the meal and the staff speak our tongue.
Give us the wisdom to tip correctly in foreign currency we do not understand.

Grant us strength to visit the museums, palaces and cathedrals, and if perchance we skip an historic monument to seek private pleasure, have mercy on us, for our flesh is weak.

Protect our wives from bargains they do not need or cannot afford; lead them not into temptation for they know not what they do.

Keep our husbands from looking at foreign women and comparing them with us. Save them from making fools of themselves at social gatherings. Above all, do not forgive them their trespasses, for they know exactly what they do.

And finally, when our wanderings are over, grant us the favour of finding someone who will look at our photographs and movies, and listen to our prattle, so that our journeys as tourists will not have been in vain.

Details in respect of membership will be supplied by Mrs. P.E. Haigh at the Surgery Bungalow.

SPARE THAT TREE!

One of Staunton-on-Wye's most conspicuous landmarks, the ancient oak tree in the churchyard south of St. Mary's church, is in danger of disintegration and the Parochial Church Council are planning to save at least some of it by removing the dead portions, rather than having it felled. The tree is estimated to be at least 200 years old and, if it is dealt with urgently, it is hoped that about one-third of it can be saved, as the lower part of the trunk is still in good condition.

It is estimated that the job of treating the tree will cost somewhere between £400 and £500 and a fund has been started to meet this cost. Donations to the fund will be gratefully received by Mrs Phyllis McCann, The Steppes, Staunton-on-Wye, phone Moccas 212.
